By Martin Schram and Jim Klurfeld Newsday Washington Bureau

Washington-The top intelligence officer in the United States believes officerum the United Soviet President the recent ouster of Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny is a sign that the Soviets want to make their bureaucracy Brezhnev now has a foot in two of the "They were sort of graven in marble," "more efficient."

of the Central Intelligence Agency, party and president, while Alexei Kosaid in an interview last week that he sygin remains prime minister believed. Podgorny's political demise Turner said, in a subordinate role was caused by his opposition to the new Soviet constitution, which gives government leaders new authority to make changes in the Council of Ministers. The change was supported by Party Chairman Leonid Brezhnev, who then assumed the position of head of Kremlin and for a long delay in anastate-president-in place of Podgor-

"It may be that they want to take a more flexible approach," Turner said. "I sincerely believe that their combination of a bloated bureaucracy and falla-siderable problems of inefficiency in great deal."

their economy. This may be an indication they want to do something about

以为2000年6月4日中76日的

Turner also said the move increases Brezhnev's power. "The fact is that Adm. Stansfield Turner, the director director said. Brezhnev is head of the sygin-remains prime minister but > President Carter was briefed on the CIA interpretation for the first time on Wednesday, Turner said. The agency had been criticized by top-level White House aides for not alerting the administration to the struggle inside the lyzing what it meant.

"We would like to have done better and there are ways that we can do better in the future," Turner said. "But we are dealing in one of the most difficult areas of intelligence. Missing that is 二二十二年的指於日本的可以各种的的工作。在1900年的中央 cious philosophy is causing them con- not one of the things that panics me a

et constitution the government ministers, who are similar to U.S. cabinet members, could not be replaced easily or have their departments changed. three major places of power," the CIA he said. "I look at the adoption of the new constitution] as a fairly significant change, opening up the possibility. of some shift in the bureaucracy of the Soviet Union, a shift to make the bureaucracy more efficient." There are 80. departments in the Soviet government. and some ministers have held their positions for 20 years or more.

Turner explained that the Council of Ministers, headed by Kosygin, under the new constitution will be directly subordinate to the Presidium, which Brezhnev, as president, currently heads. "And there is now a specific provision that the ministers can be changed ... on the recommendation of the council and approval of the Presidium . . . ," Turner said.

He said a key question was whether Brezhnev, even with his increased power, would have the clout to take on the ministers. "And also whether his health is good enough for him to be in power long enough and vigorously, enough to do this. These are things we will watch in the coming months, Turner said, L.Another-high level administration analyst of Soviet affairs said the Podgorny ouster was not anticipated be-cause Brezhnev and Podgorny had been quarreling and disagreeing over policy for years without a change in their offices. "In fact, we kind of thought of them as the Sunshine Boys-you know, the old vaudeville team played by George Burns and Walter Matthau," the analyst said. "They fought and sniped and got on each other's nerves for years but they always managed to tolerate it. But I guess it finally got to the point where Brezhnev could take Podgorny no longer." 和特的知识。如此是《光学社》的图像